

Wednesday, March 5, 2008

Adventure In Eve

I'll write about anything of remote interest but since this really is at heart a technical blog about PHP I've decided not to dilute it any further. Thus for all those interested in following my progress in Eve Online and some other more general topics I nabbed a new domain and installed a second instance of Serendipity.

You can visit my Eve Online character, Maugrim McFiriba here: <http://www.adventureineve.com>

Again, I invite anyone reading here who has started or will start playing Eve Online in the future to look me up in-game and perhaps you can even hook into my Corporation, the Crimson Industries and Development (CIDEV) Corporation. We're a fairly relaxed bunch who spend a few hours now and again knocking around in a motley collection of Cruisers, Industrials and Barges plying our mining skills and luck on the asteroid belts of quiet backwater systems. That's when we're not plying our other skills by sending Guristas and Sanshas to their frozen graves...

Posted by Pádraic Brady in PC Gaming, PHP General, PHP Security at 14:56

Now I have a lot to catch up on! Give me something to do in my spare time, at least
Anonymous on Mar 6 2008, 00:59